DOOM PATROL arrives to HBO on September 4th with its second season

The series created by Jeremy Carver continues expanding the DC Universe on HBO and HBO GO

Miami, FL, July 6th, 2020 – Reinventing one of DC Comics' most beloved group of superheroes, DOOM PATROL premieres its second season in Latin America on September 4th, exclusively on HBO and HBO GO.

Following the defeat of Mr. Nobody (Alan Tudyk), the members of this peculiar gang find themselves miniaturized and stranded on Cliff's toy race car track. Here, they begin to confront themselves, and as each member of the team is challenged to overcome their own past traumatic experiences, they must come together to protect the newest member of the family: Dorothy Spinner (recurring guest star, Abigail Shapiro).

The series stars Brendan Fraser (Crash, The Mummy, Gods and Monsters) as Robotman/Cliff; Matt Bomer (White Collar, American Horror Story, The Normal Heart) as Negative Man/Larry Trainor; April Bowlby (Two and a Half Men, How I Met Your Mother) as Elasti-Woman/Rita Farr; and Diane Guerrero (Orange is the New Black) as Crazy Jane. The team is led by Timothy Dalton (The Living Daylights, License to Kill) who plays scientist Doctor Niles Caulder/The Chief and are called to action by Joivan Wade (The First Purge, Doctor Who), also known as Cyborg.

Developed by Jeremy Carver (Supernatural, Frequency, Being Human), DOOM PATROL is produced by Geoff Johns (Suicide Squad, Aquaman, Wonder Woman, Justice League), Greg Berlanti (Arrow, Titans, The Flash, Supergirl, DC's Legends of Tomorrow), Sarah Schechter (Supergirl, Riverdale, Blindspot) and Chris Dingess (Agent Carter, Eastwick, Kevin (Probably) Saves The World).

DOOM PATROL premieres on September 4th exclusively on HBO and HBO GO. The first season is available on HBO GO.
