Del Cine a tu Casa: Spider-man: across the spider-verse premieres on HBO Max

The animation brings the neighborhood friend face-to-face in a standoff between being a hero or saving everyone he loves

Brooklyn's friendliest Spider-Man will bring the entire Spider-Verse to HBO Max with the arrival of "SPIDER-MAN: ACROSS THE SPIDER-VERSE". The film is the sequel to the acclaimed Oscar-winning Spider-Man: Into the Spider-Verse (2018), and will be available on the platform on Friday, November 3, to take audiences on the new adventure of the world's best-known web-head. In this new chapter, Miles Morales (Shameik Moore) is back on screen for a new mission. While dealing with his agitated new life as a superhero, Miles ends up being transported to a multiverse where he encounters several Spider-Men from different dimensions. Together with Gwen Stacy (Hailee Steinfeld) and a new crew of Spider-People who must protect their own existence, the hero embarks on an epic adventure. But when the spider-heroes collide over how to deal with a new threat under their noses, everything changes and Miles finds himself at a dead end. Now, as well as facing a powerful villain like the world has never seen before, Miles must redefine what it means to carry the mantle of Spider-Man if he wants the chance to save everyone he loves. With Shameik Moore, Hailee Steinfeld and Oscar Isaac in the main voice cast, the film is directed by Joaquim Dos Santos, Kemp Powers and Justin Thompson, and scripted by Phil Lord, Christopher Miller and David Callaham. The arrival of "SPIDER-MAN: ACROSS THE SPIDERVERSE" reinforces HBO Max's content focused on the beloved animated superheroes. The film joins a powerful team that also includes productions such as: "YOUNG JUSTICE PHANTOMS", "ADVENTURE TIME: FIONNA AND CAKE", "MY ADVENTURES WITH SUPERMAN" and "BATMAN - THE DOOM THAT CAME TO GOTHAM" Exploring the concept of animated heroes, and breaking the barriers of the multiverse in its own way, the platform brings a fun campaign to welcome the film to its extensive catalog, which extends from the most anticipated animated titles to the most beloved hero franchises for all generations. In addition, the film's premiere also further strengthens HBO Max's iconic catalog of blockbusters, one of the largest in the industry. This initiative is part of the Del Cine a Tu Casa franchise, a proposal by the brand to bring together various titles that come directly from movie screens to the platform, providing comfort and entertainment to audiences who can enjoy any movie anywhere and at any time.

