The first season of HBO's EUPHORIA will come to an end this Sunday

The first season of HBO's EUPHORIA will come to an end this Sunday at 10pm AST*. For seven weeks we accompanied Rue Bennet, the 17-year-old girl who, together with her family and her classmates, faced the problems of adolescence at a time when everything is exposed and amplified on the Internet. Depicting a shocking reality where belonging and acceptance are part of defining their identity, everyone in the group struggles to find meaning in their future.

Recently renewed for a second season, EUPHORIA, starring Zendaya and created by Sam Levinson, has brought an innovative perspective to youth narratives.

The cast of EUPHORIA also includes Maude Apatow, Angus Cloud, Eric Dane, Alexa Demie, Jacob Elordi, Barbie Ferreira, Nika King, Storm Reid, Hunter Schafer, Algee Smith and Sydney Sweeny.

All episodes were created and written by Sam Levinson, who was also the executive producer. Other executive producers include Drake, Future the Prince, Ravi Nandan, Kevin Turen, Hadas Mozes Lichtenstein, Ron Leshem, Daphna Levin, Tmira Yardeni, Mirit Toovi, Yoram Mokady, Gary Lennon and Jim Kleverweis. Produced in association with A24 and based on the Israeli homonymous series created by Ron Leshem and Daphna Levin from HOT.
